

Place value disks are a tool that students can use to represent numbers. They are intended to be used when students have a sound understanding of the value of each disk. Unlike base ten blocks, the value is not visible in units and they are not proportional. However, place value disks can be used when working with numbers to the millions.

