

Hint

For this solution, you will need to multiply the distance from Austin to San Antonio by the distance from Austin to New Braunfels since the problem situation uses the language as far as a).

You may choose to multiply using fractions, decimals or a percent to solve. The most efficient way to solve would be to use fractions as the problem does.