

Diameter is a straight line from one side of something, such as a circle, to the other side that passes through the center point or the distance through the center of something from one side to the other

