

A proportional relationship is the relationship between two ratios.

If a person's weight were always twice their height, then a person who is 62 inches tall would weigh 124 pounds. there is a proportional relationship between a person's height and weight, and that relationship can be shown as the following:

$$2h = w$$